Horrible Fate.

The Pioneer Association of this county ovserved the 100th anniversary of the burning at the stake of Colone William Crawford on the 10th of June. The average reader is perfectly acquainted with the facts surrounding the case of the cruel torture of a good and great man—Colonel William Crawford. But at this proper time it is well enough to recall them.

It was on the 11th day of June, and the afternoon was well spent, when Crawford, under escort of his tormentors, arrived at this ever-memorable spot of ground. They, here met many Wyandots from the Half King's town, and men, squaws and children from Captain Pipe's village just below. At fire was brightly burning. Crawford was stripped naked and ordered to sit down near the fire. The Indians now beat him with their fists and sticks. The fatal stake—a post about fifteen feet high—had been set firmly in the ground, and piles of hickory poles rather thicker than a man's thumb poles rather thicker than a man's thumb, and from eight to twelve feet long, lay at the distance of four or five yards from the stake. Crawford's hands were tied behind his back. A strong rope was produced, one end of which was fastened to the ligature between his wrists, and the other tied to the post near the ground. The rope was long enough to permit him to walk around the stake several times, and then return. Crawford, observing these terrible preparations, called to Simon Girty, who sat on horseback at the distance of a few yards from the fire, and asked if the Indians were going to burn him. Girty very coolly replied in the affirmative. Crawford heard the reply with firmness, merely observing that he would bear it with fortitude.

When the poles had been burnt asunder in the middle, Captain Pipe arose and addressed the crowd in a tone of great energy, and with animated gestures, pointing fre quently to Crawford, who regarded him with an appearance of unruffled composure. As soon as he had ended his harangue, a loud fter due publication of this order, and do what is whoop burst forth from the assembled throng, and all made a rush for the unfortunate prisoner. For several seconds the crowd was so great around Crawford that Knight, who was seated a little distance away, could not see what they were doing, but in a short time they had suffic ently dispersed to give him a view of the colonel. His ears had been cut off, and the blood was streaming down each side of his face.

A terrible scene of torture now commenced. The warriors shot charges of powder into his naked body, commencing with the calves of his legs, and continuing to his neck. It was the opinion of Knight that no less than seventy loads were discharged upon him. Three or four Indians by turns would take up one of the burning pieces of poles and apply the burning end to his naked body, already burnt black with powder. These tormentors presented themselves on every side of him, so that whichever way he ran round the post they met him with the burning brands. Some of the squaws took boad pieces of bark, upon which they could carry a quantity of burning coals and hot embers and threw them on him, so that in a short time he had nothing but coals of fire and hot ashes to walk upon!

In the midst of these extreme tortures, Craw-ford called Girty, and begged of him to shoot him through the heart. "Don't you see I have no gun colonel?" replied the white savage monater bursting into a loud laugh, and then, turning to an Indian beside him, he uttered some brutal jests upon the naked and miserable appearance of the suffering prisoner, and seemed delighted at the horrid scene. The terrible seene had now lasted more than two hours, and Crawford had become much exhausted. He walked slowly around the much exhausted. He walked slowly around the stake upon his fiery pa hway, and in a low tone of voice earnestly besought God to pardon all his sins and have mercy on his soul. His nerves had lost much of their sensibility and he no longer shrank from the firebands with which his tormentors incess intly touched him. At length he want in a limiting fit many his face and lay more sank in a mining fit upon his face and lay mo-tionless. Instantly an Indian sprang upon his back, knelt lightly upon one knee, made a circu-lar incision with his knife upon the crown of his head, and clapping his knife between his teeth, tore the scalp off with both hands. Scarcely had this been done when a withered old hag approach-ed with a piece of bark full of coals and burning embers, and poured them upon the crown of his head, now laid bare to the bone. The Colonel groaned deeply, arose and again walked slowly around the stake. Nature, at length, could endure no more, and at a late hour in the evening he fell for the last time, and sweetly welcomed death which at one stroke bore Colonel William Crawford beyond the reach of his tormentors, and gave Wyandot county a martyr hero of whom she is justly proud.—Letter to Cincinnati Commercial.
